Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to be considered for the Junior Web Developer position. I am at the early stage of my web development career and am keen to contribute to a professional team while continuing to develop my skills in modern web technologies.

I have a solid grounding in HTML, CSS and JavaScript, and understand the principles of responsive, accessible web design. I am comfortable working with version control using Git and can read and work with documentation to solve problems and implement new features.

In recent projects, I have built small, interactive web pages that demonstrate clean structure, clear styling and basic client-side functionality. Through these, I have gained experience debugging issues, refining user interfaces and ensuring cross-browser compatibility.

I am committed to producing reliable, maintainable code and to learning from more experienced developers. I would welcome the opportunity to support your development team and grow into the role of a productive Junior Web Developer.

Yours faithfully,

Mieheleketu Chauke
